Recently I have been needing to use interpreters more frequently for consultations with patients – for taking medication histories and counselling them on discharge. I didn't feel comfortable using interpreters and didn't feel I was really able to connect with the patients and their families and want to do better. This course has given me a much better idea on what the role of the interpreter is, how to structure a consultation involving an interpreter and how to do this either face to face or when the interpreter is on the phone.
